Mayor Alexander made a verbal report to the Council in reference to the meeting he attended in Kingston concerning the Centenary Celebration to be held in Kingston in 1915.
Mayor Alexander said that the members of all municipal councils in the district were constituted members of the celebration committee. The district extends from Brockville on the east to Belleville on the west,
and as far north as Tamworth. The chairman and secretary-treasurer of the School Board, officers of the Daughters of the Empire, and Historical Society, together with some of Napanee's influential citizens had also been appointed members of the celebration committee. A Kingston intends celebrating the King's birthday in June this year, and it is intended to hold a mass meeting of the Centenary Celebration Committee in that city on that day, as it is considered an opportune time. The Government has made an appropriation of $25,000 towards these celebrations and each district will receive a portion of this grant. The form this peace celebration will take
has not yet been decided, but all arrangements will be made at a later date.

A By-law for the purpose of borrowing from the Merchants Bank of Canada the sum of $15,000 to meet
current expenditure was introduced,
and after passing through the various stages, was finally passed.

Coun. Waller called to the attention of this Council the fact that the Seymour Power Co. was violating some of the clauses of their contract with the town, particularly so when they erect new poles and trim
trees without notifying the Council
that they propose doing this work.

The Clerk was instructed to notify the Seymour Power and Electric Co. calling their attention to the matter complained of, and also asking for a general compliance of the terms of the contract between the town and themselves.

Councillor Dickinson also informed the Council that similar action (in reference to the cutting down and trimming of trees) was being taken by private citizens, and he was of the opinion that as this is contrary
to a town by-law, it should not be allowed.

On motion of Coun. Carson and Reeve Denison, a notice was ordered inserted in the local papers cautioning the citizens against cutting and trimming trees without permission of the Council.

LECTURE ON TUBERCULOSIS

WELL ATTENDED AND MUCH INTEREST SHOWN.

Despite the storm of Sunday night, which doubtless kept many in their homes, a goodly number were present to hear the lecture on tuberculosis by Mr. Watson, the Field Secretary of the National Sanitarium Association. His Worship, Mayor Alexander, filled the chair with his usual tact and ability, and Mr. Day, of the Canadian Express, dexterously handled the lantern-slide illustration. The lecture given with great rapidity, covered an immense amount of ground, and was listened to with intense interest throughout. The former part dealt with the disease, the manner of its development in the human system, and the various means by which it is propagated in this and all communities. The safeguards that nature provides against tubercular infection were clearly pointed out, and the care that should be taken to preserve in their integrity these safeguards was emphasized, and assurance given of the fact that good health usually means tolerable and general exemption from germ diseases.

The latter part of the lecture represented in pictures with lucid explanation, the several institutions established and controlled by the above association, and much detail was given in reference to the Muskoka Free Hospital where care and treatment are given free of charge to indigent consumptives. At present in it there are 186 patients, 147 of whom pay nothing. Its cost for maintenance during the present year will be over $80,000, and since it is mostly dependent on the little contributions received, appeal therefore is made by means of this lecture. In all cities and towns visited many handsome contributions are received.

A collection to that end was taken up at the close, and intimation was given that a canvas of our people would be made in order that all may have an opportunity to help Canada's Greatest Charity.

THE LATE MRS. CATWRIGHT.

In the recent passing-away of Mrs. R. C. Cartwright, the United Empire Loyalist Chapter, of the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire, have lost a valued member, which is deeply regretted by that body.

Death has been busy in our ranks during the past year, three of our number being called to join the great majority, during that period.

Mrs. Cartwright, besides being a loyal and faithful member of the above order, was also a charter member of said chapter.

Though the state of Mrs. Cartwright's health prevented her for some time past from taking any active part in the work after the Chapter, she was in full sympathy with its ideals and activities.

She was greatly missed at the Chapter meetings, but her patient endurance and brave demeanor, under much suffering, she was called upon to bear, is a valuable lesson to all.

For, as a great writer has said: "the growing good of the world is partly dependent on unhistoric acts, and that things are not so ill with you and me as they might have been is half owing to the number who lived faithfully a middle life, and rest in unvisited tombs."

As Mrs. Cartwright's funeral took place out of town, it is a matter of regret to the Executive and members of the U. E. Loyalist Chapter that they could not show the respect to her memory which they would like to have done, by attending the services in a body.

DECISIVE ACTION NEEDED.

Wilson Will Take Drastic Steps In Mexico If All Else Fails.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Presi- dent Wilson revealed to those who discussed Mexican affairs with him yesterday that he fully realized the gravity of the situation resulting from the killing of Wm. S. Benton, a British subject; the reported murder of Gustav Bauch and Clemente Ver- gara, American citizens, and Gen. Carranza's denial of the right of the United States to look after the inter- ests of foreigners generally in Mexico.

The President spoke deplorably of armed intervention, but at the same time pointedly referred to the size and power of a country like the United States as being sufficient warrant for a calm and patient course while compliance with the American de- mands was being sought.

Callers got the impression from the President that he was determined to try every peaceful means at his dis- posal to solve the Mexican problem, but that he realized certain eventu- alities might mean a drastic course. He spoke with a firmness that showed his determination not to be stampeded into action by radical speeches in Congress, but with a hint that when the necessity arose the American Government could be expected to move decisively and effectively.

Sir Edward Grey's expected state- ment in the House of Commons is awaited with much interest, as it is hoped by many he will show just how far Great Britain expects reparation for the Benton killing at this time. To-day Sir Lionel Carden, the British Minister to Mexico, will discuss Mexi- can affairs with President Wilson, bringing him the latest information about the Huerta Government and the situation in Mexico City.

Bauch Murdered Thinks Villa.

Villa's expressed belief that Gustav Bauch, who was arrested at Juarez as a spy two weeks ago, was the vic- tim of an assassin, occasioned no sur- prise here, where the German-Ameri- can sister, Mrs. J. M. Patterson, and others interested in the case, have been resigned to the conclusion that Bauch was slain at Juarez a week ago last Friday. They scout the per- sonal enemy idea, however.

Repeated assertions have been made by certain Juarez rebels, talk- ing confidentially to friends on this side of the border, that Bauch was executed, an the stories all agreed on the date of the execution, which was the day Gen. Villa departed for Chihuahua.

Pelee Island sent but four dele- gates and they nearly perished in their attempt to get to the mainland. It is 18 miles across the lake to the island, and the four who got across started in a small rowboat. They had not gone far before they struck ice, and had to get out and carry their boat across the ice until water was reached again. This occurred several PETROLEA, March 3.—With the wind blowing forty miles an hour and the thermometer recording ten de- grees above zero, the Lome of Wil- liam Mackerel on Tank street was burned to the ground about ten o'clock yesterday morning.

TYPHOID IN CANADA.

Eminent British Doctor Says Inoculate Everybody.

TORONTO, March 3.—"I have been asked to recommend that you should inoculate the whole population of Canada with typhoid vaccine; and I certainly see no reason why you should not do so." This somewhat startling statement was made to a gathering of the medical fraternity in the Physics Building last night by Sir William D. Leishman, the famous physician, while lecturing on the value of inoculation in preventing typhoid fever.

"In my short stay here," he continued, "I have learned that you suffer very largely from typhoid in this country; that it is, in fact, a scourge in some country parts and villages. If you organize a campaign so that people exposed to the risk of typhoid will be inoculated you will be doing a great deal of good, and we can thus compile very valuable statistics."

Girl Frozen To Death.

HAZLETON, Pa., March 3.—Ella Sweeney, 22 years old, was found frozen to death yesterday in a sleigh where her companion, James Bartoldi, had left her Sunday night in the blizzard while he went for help.

The young woman had become cold and terror-stricken over the raging storm, and there were four or five miles more of hard road to travel. Her companion stopped the horse within 300 yards of shelter and tramped two miles over the mountain for assistance. Almost collapsing at the end of his journey, he was not permitted to make the return trip. A searching party yesterday found the body of the girl.

Burleigh, Rudyard Kipling, Prof. Albert Venn Dicey and Sir William Ramsay, and a score of less prominent persons, yesterday issued an appeal to their fellow-countrymen to follow their example in signing a declaration which is milder in form than the Ulster covenant, by which they hold themselves in case the Irish home rule bill becomes a law without first being submitted to the judgment of the nation, "justified in taking or supporting any action that may be effective to prevent it being put in operation."

The signatories of the appeal are careful to point out that by signing the declaration "no man will pledge himself to take any particular action of which his conscience or judgment does not approve."

CONSTITUENTS TO ACT.

Evanturel's Case To Be Dealt With By Executive of Riding.

VANKLEEK HILL, Ont., March 3.—The executive of the County of Prescott Liberal Association has been summoned by President J. N. La-Pointe to meet in Vankleek Hill on Saturday, March 7, to consider the question of Gustave Evanturel, M.P.P., and his expulsion from the party. From opinions freely expressed, it looks as though the association will almost unanimously demand Evanturel's retirement from public life. Some of his friends have started the race-religious cry in his favor, declaring he is being persecuted by Messrs. Fyfe, Ferguson and Hanna, and the Orangemen of Ontario. These were discussed in parishes after church on Sunday. Mr. Evanturel's personal friends in Alfred are outspoken in these declarations. Mr. Evanturel, it is understood, will be asked to attend the meeting on Saturday.

Youth Suspected of Murder.

DECATUR, Ill., March 3—"If anything happens to me, see John Baucom."

This note, found on the body of F. W. Mennerich, who was killed in his home by a bomb received by mail, resulted in the arrest yesterday of Baucom, who is only 18 years old.

The coroner's jury had recommended that the youth, who is said to have assaulted Mennerich last week after a quarrel, be held for the grand jury pending a further investigation of the tragedy.

United States postal inspectors are investigating a charge that a friend of Mennerich's wife, from whom he was separated, may be implicated.

THE CURIOUS AXOLOTL.

It's a Regular Jekyll and Hyde Sort of Reptile.

Persons of only ordinary powers of observation know that tadpoles become frogs. This process of transformation is one of the most interesting of the many curious things that go on about us every day. The case of the tadpole and frog is mentioned that the reader may more easily understand a reptile that is found in southern California and Mexico.

There are several varieties of salamandrine reptiles in North America, all of them perfectly harmless. One in particular lives in the desert regions of the southwest. The Mexicans call it the axolotl. It is perhaps the most curious of all reptiles. It is a light gray or pure white translucent reptile about seven inches in length. It lives in lakes and ponds, breathes through gills just back of the front legs, has a long tail and caudal fins above and below that extend its entire length and four stout legs, with which it creeps about the bottom of the pond.

In the region where these reptiles live long continued droughts are common. Then the ponds and lakes dry up. As the water falls evaporation begins. Instinct warns the axolotl that there will shortly be no water, and he makes preparation for a terrestrial life. The gills disappear, and he comes to the surface for air just as a tadpole does when he is about to become a frog. As the water grows shallower the axolotl loses a portion of his tail, sheds his caudal fins, changes from white to brown with gray spots and when the water is quite gone takes to the sand hills and becomes a spotted salamander.

The most remarkable thing about it all is that when the water supply is not exhausted he lives his entire life as an axolotl and never tries to become a spotted salamander. By experimentation an axolotl has been made to undergo almost complete transformation and then has been turned back into an axolotl again.—Youth's Companion.

The Secret of Health is Elimination of Waste

Every business man knows how difficult it is to keep the pigeon holes and drawers of his desk free from the accumulation of useless papers. PARTISANSHIP SELF-DEFEATED

GOVERNMENT HAS OVERREACHED ITSELF ON THE N. T. R. REPORT.

The report of the National Transcontinental investigation commission is of itself steadily defeating the ends of its political draughtsmen. In their eagerness to meet the wishes of the Government and make political capital, Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton have disregarded facts entirely too much. When the report came up for debate in the Commons shortly, the chances are that it will be the investigating commissioners themselves on trial rather than the former commissioners of the National Transcontinental Railway. Liberals in caucus this week decided that there could not be too much light thrown on all the expenditures in connection with the National Transcontinental Railway and that there must be a thorough ventilation in Parliament of every charge of alleged waste made by the ex-C. P. R. divisional superintendent and the Conservative lawyer from Hamilton.

A number of significant facts have been brought out during the past few days in the Commons by replies given by the Government to inquiries from the Opposition and by correspondence tabled dealing with the relations of the Grand Trunk Pacific to the present head of the National Transcontinental Railway. Hon. Frank Cochrane stated in the House that the contract for the whole of the Hudson Bay Railway, over 400 miles in length, had been let to Mr. J. D. McArthur who was formally a contractor on the National Transcontinental Railway. Hon. Robert Rogers admitted that the Welland Canal contracts, aggregating expenditures of over $20,000,000 had been given to four contractors. Some of these latter contractors were also amongst those who, according to Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton had read the opinions of these gentlemen, but despite that they deliberately inserted in their report the declaration that the construction of the shops was "not authorized by law" and that the expenditure was unnecessary and wasteful.

One more significant disclosure may be referred to. The correspondence in connection with the construction of the new Quebec terminals for the National Transcontinental Railway shows that the Grand Trunk Pacific repeatedly protested against the arrangement entered into without their consent between Major Leonard and the Canadian Pacific Railway for Union terminals. President Chamberlain of the Grand Trunk Pacific declared that the estimated cost of the new union terminals, over $8,000,000, was entirely unwarranted by the prospective business at that port, and that under the agreement entered into the Canadian Pacific Railway had the entire control of the terminals. But the Government went ahead with the agreement demanded by the Canadian Pacific Railway and ignored entirely the Grand Trunk Pacific thus apparently inviting the latter road to back out of its agreement made with Parliament in 1904 in regard to operation of the National Transcontinental Railway.

Finally there is to be noted the fact that the latest estimated cost of the construction of the road when completed at the end of the present year is $161,307,800. These are the figures given to the House on Monday last by Hon. Frank Cochrane, but according to the report of Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton it is stated that the estimated cost of the whole road according to General engineer Gordon Grant on September 30th, 1911, was $161,300,000. Two years afterwards, and after the Government has had ample time to affect the "economies" referred to by Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton, the estimate of the total cost is actually increased. Apparently the present Government "economies" while aiming to lower the standard of the road are resulting at the same time in increasing the cost of the road.

An investigation of the investigators would be of public interest.

THE PRICE OF THE TRANSCONTINENTAL COMMISSIONERS' REPORT.

The total cost of the Commission appointed by the Borden Government to report on the National Transcontinental Railway is not yet known. In Parliament the outlay up to February 18th, 1914, was stated to be $63,388.45, divided as follows:

F. P. Gutelius	$27,465.48
Lynch-Staunton	24,088.01

have been framed in a manner calculated to deceive the electors as to the actual expenditures on agriculture under the Borden and under the Laurier administrations.

THE COST OF LIVING OF NO CONCERN TO THE SECRETARIES OF TORY MINISTERS.

By a return brought down a few days ago showing what the private secretaries to the Liberal Ministers were paid in comparison to the private secretaries of the Conservative Ministers, it was shown that the total amount paid private secretaries under the Liberal rule was $30,500, or on an average of $2,346.00, while under the Conservative rule the same number of private secretaries were receiving $38,100, or $2,930.00 each, an increase of almost 25 per cent.

MORE GRAFT IN SITES. EXHIBITANT PRICES PAID FOR LEVIS QUARANTINE STATION SITE BY THE MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE.

In the twelve months prior to the purchase of land for a quarantine station at Levis by Hon. Martin Burrell as Minister of Agriculture last year the price of property rose from $5,500 to $32,750. The facts are as follows:

In July 1912, land at Levis, Que., was purchased by one Buteau, for $5,500. Eleven months later Buteau sold the property on June 26th, 1913, to a Conservative, Dussault, for $12,200. Dussault thirty days later, on July 26th, 1913, sold the property to W. P. Dohen for $25,500. Dohen four days later sold it to the Department of Agriculture for a quarantine site for $32,750, an increase in one year of $27,250. The property changed hands four times in less than one year. The advances in price were as follows:

$5,500 to $12,200 in eleven months.
$12,200 to $25,400 in one month.
$25,400 to $32,750 in four days.

The increases can hardly be classed as land speculation.

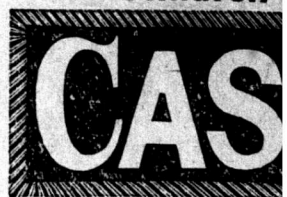

Is there any explanation conceivable other than that the parties had secret knowledge and assurance of the intended ultimate purchase of the property by the Government? It would appear that Hon. Mr. Burrell is prepared to allow himself a place in the same category as Hon. Robert Rogers, in regard to public land deals as a means of furthering the private interests of party followers.

THE NAVAL SERVICE A MEANS OF PATRONAGE

Notwithstanding the fact that the the Borden Government have dismantled and put out of commission the Niobe and Rainbow, and that they are boasting in political campaign sheets circulated throughout the Province of Quebec, that they are doing nothing in regard to the Navy, a return presented to the House on February 2nd, by the Hon. Mr. Hazen shows that on December 15th, 1913, there were 15 officers, 19 midshipmen, and 246 petty officers and men enlisted under the Canadian Naval Service Act; that out of this number, 14 officers 153 petty officers and men were on that date enlisted on the H.M.C.S. Niobe; that the total expenditure for the Naval Service of the Calendar year 1913 was $2,364,322.95, out of which amount $317,881.55 was spent during that year in connection with H.M.C.S. Niobe. The Government is prepared to retain the Naval Service as a means of furthering expenditures and patronage, but is not prepared to render it of value either to Canada or the Empire.

CAUGHT BY A POSTAL T

The "Twopenny Detective" Is Employed in England.

Detectives, lawyers' clerks and others often experience great difficulty obtaining an undoubted specimen of a certain person's signature. In case recourse had to be had to a signature register. In another the signature procurable was on a leaf of a book which the suspect presented to a relative, and on or three years ago a testimonial sea captain was brought into because among the signatures was one for which the police had hunted in vain.

One of the most common expedients resorted to for overcoming this difficulty is employing the "twopenny detective"—that is, sending a registered letter to the person whose signature is wanted. And this is frequently successful. Thinking the postal contains money or valuables, the addressee unsuspectingly signs the receipt only to discover that inside the envelope there is nothing but a "red" letter.

This trap once caught an anon letter writer—a woman—who, being interrogated shortly before

Railway, over 100 miles in length, has been let to Mr. J. D. McArthur who was formally a contractor on the National Transcontinental Railway. Hon. Robert Rogers admitted that the Welland Canal contracts, aggregating expenditures of over $20,000,000 had been given to four contractors. Some of these latter contractors were also amongst those who, according to Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton got "rake-offs" in connection with the construction of the National Transcontinental Railway.

One of the strongest points made by Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton was that there had been an alleged waste of nearly $8,000,000 through letting the contracts for the National Transcontinental Railway to a few large contractors and by allowing subletting to smaller contractors instead of adopting the policy of letting out contracts for only comparatively small sections of the road. Now it appears that the Government is doing on the Hudson Bay Railway and on the Welland Canal the same thing that the Laurier Government is blamed for doing in the case of the National Transcontinental. In the case of the Hudson Bay Railway and the Welland Canal, the big contractors are letting to smaller contractors. What was wrong under the Laurier Government is apparently right under the Borden Government.

Another direct and conclusive answer to one of the main charges of Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton is given in the correspondence dealing with the construction of the Transcona shops at Winnipeg. The investigating commissioners said that the expenditures of four and a half millions of dollars on these shops represented practically so much "waste" and was "in our opinion, not authorized by law." The correspondence tabled by Hon. Frank Cochrane last week shows that against the opinion of these subsidized partisan condemnors of the National Transcontinental there are explicit and repeated opinions to the contrary of the question of law by the present Minister of Justice Hon. C. J. Doherty by the ex-Minister of Justice, Sir Allan Aylesworth, by the Deputy Minister of Justice, Mr. Newcombe, and by the law clerk of National Transcontinental commission, Mr. H. Atkinson, while on the question of practical utility and necessity for the shops there is the opinion of Sir William Whyte of Winnipeg, one of the best known railway authorities on the continent. Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton

TOTAL FINANCIAL REPORT.

The total cost of the Commission appointed by the Borden Government to report on the National Transcontinental Railway is not yet known. In Parliament the outlay up to February 18th, 1914, was stated to be $63,388.45, divided as follows:

F. P. Gutelius	$27,465.48
Lynch-Staunton	24,638.01
Other expenses	11,884.96

A cabinet minister receives a salary of $7,000 per year, but the gentlemen appointed to bring in a report which would serve a useful political purpose have demanded and secured as payment for this service a sum from three to four times this amount, for work which has occupied only a part of their time during a period of about two years. Mr. Lynch-Staunton has continued his practice as a Barrister and in addition to what his profession has brought him has received over $24,000. As to Gutelius, it remains to be seen if he has not drawn two salaries, one as General Manager of the Intercolonial Railway at several thousands a year, and the other as one of the Commissioners to investigate the Transcontinental Railway with a return of an additional $27,465.

"EDUCATING" THE FARMERS. NEW GOVERNMENTAL AGRICULTURAL PUBLICATION TAINTED WITH PARTISANSHIP.

The taint of political trickery seems to have permeated the whole Borden Cabinet. The most recent instance exposed in the Commons relates to the Minister of Agriculture, Hon. Martin Burrell, whose attitude of apparent non-partisanship and fairness has hitherto been fairly well sustained.

When the Agricultural Estimates came up on February 24th, one of the first points to be discussed was the new Agricultural Gazette, a monthly periodical started in January by the Minister to boost his Department and to help "educate the farmer." When Hon. Mr. Burrell's attention was drawn to the gross inaccuracies this publication contained, he was obliged to admit that it had statements which would convey to the casual reader, the impression that the Liberal Government had done comparatively little for agriculture while during the last two years the Conservative Government had done much.

On the first page of this publication over Mr. Burrell's own signature appears this statement, "The magazine is designed to supply to the press and to those who are engaged in Agriculture work, facts and information relating to the educational and scientific side of Agriculture."

During the discussion in the House of Commons, after some glaring inaccuracies evidently designed for political effect had been pointed out to Mr. Burrell, the Minister said, "I have no doubt that it may be that there will be inaccuracies, but these will be very quickly set apart." When it was shown that he had inflated the Agricultural expenditure for the year 1913-14 by counting twice an item of $700,000, all he could say was "The item on page 62, should not, as far as I can see, have been repeated." When asked why the statistical table giving the expenditure for 1904-5 (under the Liberal regime) did not contain certain votes, Mr. Burrell said, "I do not know," and added, "I am not disputing that there may be inaccuracies." The minister proceeded to make the best he could of a very awkward position and eventually promised the members that in a subsequent number he would correct these inaccuracies. It is to be remembered that the people of Canada are paying for the publication of this Agriculture Gazette. Affairs have come to a nice pass when a Minister is obliged to admit in Parliament that the figures so paid for which amount $317,881.55 was spent during that year in connection with H.M.C.S. Niobe. The Government is prepared to retain the Naval service as a means of furthering expenditures and patronage, but is not prepared to render it of value either to Canada or the Empire.

COURTESIES OF WAR.

Christmas Boxes the Boers Dropped Among the English.

When the Boers advanced on Ladysmith in the Transvaal war the late Melton Prior was one of the twenty newspaper correspondents who threw in their lot with the English army instead of making the hurried retreat that was still possible. In his book, "Campaigns of a War Correspondent," he tells many interesting incidents of the siege.

The enemy succeeded in placing thirty-two guns on the heights above the town and kept up such an incessant fire that the troops and civilians were soon engaged in digging bomb proof shelters. In a short time they learned to distinguish the different Boer guns by their sound and gave them amusing names. Three of the large ones they called "Long Tom," "Puffing Billy" and "Weary Willie." Then there was "Silent Susan," so named because the bursting of a shell was the first warning we got that it had been fired. "Bloody Mary," as you may suppose, was looked upon as a beast of a gun.

In spite of the havoc that the cannon worked, the soldiers soon grew accustomed to the shelling. One day the Second Gordon highlanders were playing football, when a shell plumped in among them. Fortunately, no one was hit, and they went on playing. The Boers were so interested, apparently, that they gave up firing and actually sat on the edge of the hills, watching the game. Then, when it was all over, the firing started afresh.

But this was not the only courtesy the enemy showed. On Christmas day they saluted the happy morn by salvos of shells. The first two that fell into the camps of the carabineers and the Imperial Light horse did not burst. When the shells were picked up it was found that wooden plugs had been inserted in place of the fuses, and inside the shells were plum puddings. On the outside were the words, "With the compliments of the season."

Soda and Water.

For sheer simplicity of phrase and conception few have surpassed that delightful old lady who, with a shrewd twinkle in her eye, inquired whether "soda water" should be written as two separate words or if there should be a siphon between them.

from the roof of her house; while of is two sisters, who lived respec- tively at Ghent and Paris, one was killed by the kick of a horse and the other by a blow received from a falling scaffold.

Jean Adnet had six children, four sons and two daughters. Of these, the latter perished through the over- turning of a pleasure-boat. One of the sons was stabbed in a drunken brawl; another was crushed to death by a heavy wagon; while the remain- ing two who had emigrated to Amer- ica, were slain in 1891 while fight- ing for Balmaeda against the Con- gressists.

But of peculiar records, the strangest was that held by a family, nicknamed the "Odd Family," that lived at Ipswich at the commence- ment of the eighteenth century. The names of the father, mother and seven sons each contained an odd number of letters. The youngest son Ezekiel enlisted as a grenadier in 1703, and was wounded twenty- three times. Five other sons—Roger, James, Matthew, Jonas and David—died in different places and, by an extraordinary coincidence, were buried on the same day in the year 1713. Ten years later another son, Solomon, was with Ezekiel, drowned in crossing the Thames.

EVOLUTION OF WHEELS

IT FORMS A FASCINATING STUDY IN HUMAN DEVELOPMENT.

For All the Improvements in Means of Locomotion Man Has Not Been Able to Do Without the Wheel for Purposes of Locomotion—Massive Stone and Wood Discs Were the First Form Used.

The history of the evolution of lo- comotion, as well as an infinity of other studies of the keenest interest, could all be centred in the wheel, states a writer in The Lady. With- out wheels we should have no watches, no steering at sea. We should be unable to utilize the water- falls as motor force, nor should we have hundreds of other things of the utmost attraction and utility. All our modern civilization has come to us on wheels. All we have learned about other countries, all the com- merce we have established through- out the world, and our means of wealth we owe to the wheel. It is difficult to imagine what the world would come to if suddenly all wheels vanished from our midst. No war, no famine, no revolution could be one-hundredth part as effectual in putting us back centuries as the lack of wheels.

The first men, when they wished to move their goods from one place to another must have joined together a few planks of wood, placed them on the trunk of a tree, and dragged this primitive cart along the un- even ground. But very soon after this first step they must have made another, for the necessity of wheels must have been felt by them. The first wheels were made of massive stones or wood, and they became throughout the ages ever lighter as they became more perfect. The axle and the wheel were formerly all in one piece. Then they were made separately. Afterwards the fellow and the spoke were introduced. The first records of carts have come to us from China, then from Egypt.

In the early days of man's civiliza- tion there were strange superstitions as to locomotion. It was thought that every existing thing which moved had to be carried on some form of cart. They went so far as to believe that the moon was thus wheeled round the earth on a cart drawn by bulls. In Roman times a primitive shape of cart or basket con- veyance was called by them "plaus- trum," the wheels of which had no spokes, being solid, and nearly a foot thick. Sometimes they were made of boards nailed together or sawn whole from the trunk of a tree. A wagon of basket work, called "benna," had wheels with many spokes. This vehicle is still used in Italy and other Southern States.

But it is undoubtedly the chariot which appeals to one's imagination most, for the chariot, besides being a vehicle of transit, was part of the luxurious life of the Greeks and the Romans. Their triumphs and their greatest prestige can all be recon- structed by the recollection of their various chariots. The names of the chariots varied according to the number of horses they had harnessed to them. When drawn by two horses they were called "biga," with three "triga," with four "quadriga." Horses were driven abreast, and there are records of as many as 10 having been harnessed to one char- iot. But the quadriga was particu-

Cape Wolfe, Canada.—"Last March I was a complete wreck. I had given up all hope of getting better or living any length of time, as I was such a sufferer from female troubles. But I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am in good health and have a pair of twin boys two months old and growing finely. I surprised doctors and neighbors for they all know what a wreck I was.

"Now I am healthy, happy and hearty, and owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies. You may publish this letter if you like. I think if more women used your remedies they would have better health."—Mrs. J. T. COOK, Lot No. 7, Cape Wolfe, P.E.I., Canada.

Because your case is a difficult one, and doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has remedied many cases of female ills, such as inflamma- tion, ulceration, displacements, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and it may be exactly what you need.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of women—ills that deal out despair. It is an es- tablished fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

MYSTERY OF THE SALMON.

Their Annual Mad Rushes and Death After Spawning.

The world's greatest salmon runs are to be found along the shores of the north Pacific ocean, in the states of Washington, Oregon and California, the province of British Columbia and Alaska, on the American side, and Si- beria and Japan, on the Asiatic side. So far, however, but few salmon have been canned on the Asiatic side.

To one who has never witnessed these annual runs it is almost an im- possibility to convey an adequate im- pression of the countless numbers of fish that swim in from the sea in the late spring and summer, all imbued with the same desire to gain suitable grounds in the upper reaches of the rivers, some of which are from 1,500 to 2,500 miles in length, where they may perpetuate the species.

No obstacle appears too great to be surmounted in this feverish rush. Jumping falls, shooting rapids, dodg- ing nets, bears, birds, mink, otter and other enemies, fighting with other males, whom the near approach of the breeding season renders especially sav- age—all these are taken as a matter of

FREAK FAMILIES.

Fast and Heaviest on Record—A Father of Eighty-Seven.

There are at the present time living in Albao, Spain, a family of seven between them possess no fewer than 164 fingers. One of them has only three fingers, another twenty-five, while of the remaining five can boast a couple of hands twelve fingers apiece. At Kossul, Russia, a very similar phenomenon exists in the fifty or more descendants of a peasant with extra fingers on his hands, who married at the beginning of last century, all of whom are dowered with from one to five fingers in excess of the normal number.

The last surviving member of what perhaps, the record family with the most weight was, in the person of Mr. Charles Atkins, a few years interred at Harrow, Eng. He weighed 34 stone, his brothers, who ceased him, being no less than one and 40 stone. Another family was the Dudfields, one of whom, Robert, a brewer's drayman, weighed at his death 32 stone, a stone heavier than his twin brother, whose 30 stone was equalled, if not topped, by their two sisters.

The family record for longevity has not been beaten since Robert the great-grandson of the celebrated Thomas Parr, died in 1741 at the age of 124. His father celebrated his 109th birthday, his grandfather reached 113, his great-grandfather was 152 at the time of his death. If a long-lived family of Wisbech, named the dale cannot in the mere number of years compete with the Parrs, surely holds the record for numerous weddings, of which five have been celebrated in the family within comparatively recent years.

One of the most notable instances of oddness is that mentioned in the Farleian Miscellany of a Scotch farmer and his wife, who were the parents of sixty-two children, of whom reached their majority. Notably four gentlemen of the neighborhood each adopted ten of them, the remainder being brought up by their parents.

As this family was, its fame preceded that of a Russian, one Wassilif, who was the proud father of eighty-seven. He was married. By his first wife he had nine children in the following order: Four times quadruplets at a seven times triplets, and six times twins. By his second wife he had twice triplets and six twins.

Undoubtedly the record for misadventure belongs to a Belgian family named Adnet. The father, Jean, was drowned; his wife committed suicide by throwing herself from the top of a tower. The youngest son Ezekiel enlisted as a grenadier in 1703, and was wounded twenty-three times. Five other sons—Roger, James, Matthew, Jonas and David—died in different places and, by an extraordinary coincidence, were buried on the same day in the year 1713. Ten years later another son, Solomon, was with Ezekiel, drowned in crossing the Thames.

In Extremis.

Late one night a clergyman was called out to minister to an old man—a worker upon the adjacent railway—who was supposed to be dying. The summons was brought by another old man, the elder brother of the stricken one. While he was bustling about, making preparations for departure, the clergyman forgot momentarily the social status of his visitor and asked, "Is he in extremis?"

The old man was not going to be beaten. "Aye, he's right in, your reverence." After a pause he added as a clincher: "Clean in, poor chap; right up to the neck, sir."

An Unpleasant Encounter.

"I was told young Staylate had quite an encounter with Maude Brown's father?"

"Yes, he did. He met the old man tacking home from the club just as he was leaving the house and in trying to avoid one another they both fell down the terrace and broke a seven-dollar garden vase. And now the old man says he was assaulted by two burly ruffians, and Staylate doesn't dare to go near the house for fear he'll be recognized as both of them."

All Beach.

A mother who still admires Marcel waves was at work upon her hair. Little daughter, from her happy station on papa's knee, watched the operation with interest. Presently the little fingers slid gently over papa's smooth and glossy pate.

"No waves for you, father," the childish voice said sweetly. "Your head is all beach."

An Oath of Silence.

In certain districts of Western Australia there are women who take an oath to remain silent after the death of their husbands. In some cases they will remain mute for two years after the funeral, and very often the oath is kept also by the mother and mother-in-law of the deceased.—Paris Revue Medicale.

Honduras' Silver Coins.

In the republic of Honduras the silver currency was for years minted from Socorro bullion. This nearly always contains a certain proportion of gold, which used not to be separated before it went to the mint, so that Honduras silver coins prior to 1911 generally contain a certain proportion of gold.

When drawn by two horses they were called "biga," with three "triga," with four "quadriga." Horses were driven abreast, and there are records of as many as 10 having been harnessed to one chariot. But the quadriga was particularly favored. As an emblem of victory it was at times placed on a triumphal arch, and even kept as a heirloom in the homes of some distinguished nobleman whose ancestors had won them as trophies of victory. At this time the chariot wheel was large, prominent, and most important. The typical ones had four spokes fixed on a felloe, with flexible wood axes, and bound outside by an iron tyre.

The wheel seems to have lent itself to gruesome work from olden times to comparatively recent ones, though as an instrument of torture (which was suppressed by the Revolution) the wheel only became a legal instrument of torture in France at the end of the reign of Francois I. (1534), and was inflicted as a punishment on highwaymen and other culprits. Yet as a means of punishment its use dates back to Roman times, when criminals were crushed to death under the wheels of carts. The Assyrians made wheels even more deadly and fearsome. They looked upon their carts as means of attack and defence, and to their wheels they added sharp blades which literally cut down their enemies. The shape of chariots did not vary much in Jerusalem, Persia, Assyria, India, Greece, or Rome, but it was the Romans who brought them to an artistic perfection unsurpassed. To some of their most beautiful triumphal chariots the Romans attached captive kings after a victorious battle. We can hardly fathom the pride of the conqueror or the humiliation of the conquered at this time.

When we arrive at the period in history of locomotion in which carriages put in an appearance, the romance of wheels begins to wane. The first of these is mentioned by Xerxes on his invasion of Greece. He is then said to have possessed a carriage as well as a chariot. The Roman transport cart, with its powerful wheels, has come down to us unchanged, and is still used in country districts. At the end of the 18th century carriages were in general use, and could be hired. Then a variety of shapes came into—and went out of—fashion: mail-coach, omnibus, tilbury, stanhope, dogcart, cab, hansom, brake, wagonette, buggy, victoria, landau, phaeton, tramcar, and, finally, motor vehicles replaced horse-drawn conveyances. But they had one thing in common—all of them went on wheels.

of rivers, some of which are from 1,500 to 2,500 miles in length, where they may perpetuate the species.

No obstacle appears too great to be surmounted in this feverish rush. Jumping falls, shooting rapids, dodging nets, bears, birds, mink, otter and other enemies, fighting with other males, whom the near approach of the breeding season renders especially savage—all these are taken as a matter of course.

And yet one sometimes wonders if the heroic struggle is worthily repaid, for the moment of victory is also that of death, as, sad to relate, these valiant voyagers can breed but once and then must die, their wasted bodies, which have received no nourishment since leaving salt water, becoming the prey of any prowling bear or carrion bird which may chance upon them. Why these fish should all die after spawning still remains one of the great unsolved mysteries of the scientific world.—Wide World Magazine.

Pocket Hunters.

There is no more interesting character in California than that class of prospector known as the "pocket hunter." In certain sections of the mountains the rich gold deposits are contained in small scattered pockets near the surface. The pocket miners often discover many rich deposits by tracing the particles of gold in the soil to their sources. As soon as a pocket is gouged out and colors of gold are no longer shown the place is abandoned. In one pocket in Trinity county as much as $45,000 was yielded in a few feet.—Argonaut.

How He Uses His Hands.

Some curious facts about Mr. Townsend, the art editor of London Punch, are narrated. He is a curious instance of ambidexterity. His drawings are done with the left hand, but his letters are written with the right hand. He is left handed as a billiard player, but right handed as a card dealer. And when he plays cricket he is a left handed bowler but a right handed batsman.—London Answers.

Way to Marital Happiness.

"Marry a bright woman for success and a pretty one for happiness," advises a student of the problem. Also one who can cook for the benefit of the digestion might be advisable, but the pesky laws limit you to one.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

His Conceit.

Abbe Pradt, a minor light of Napoleon's time, was a most conceited man. The Duke of Wellington met him in Paris at a dinner given in honor of himself. The abbe made a long oration, chiefly on the state of political affairs, and concluded with the words, "We owe the salvation of Europe to one man alone." "Before he gave me time to blush," said the duke, "he put his hand on his heart and continued, 'To me.'"

All In Harmony.

"Have you been in Mrs. Gilder's new home?"
"No."
"It's furnished perfectly exquisite. You ought to see the antiques! Everything is just as old as it can be. Why, she hasn't neglected a single period."
"Indeed!"
"Yes. What do you think? She's even got a Queen Anne vacuum cleaner!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

ANCIENT HISTORY

(Published by request.)

In Ernesttown, not far from the present railway station, and a few lots west of what has long been known as Links Mills, stands one of the old and somewhat historic churches of this county, long known as "St. Peters Lutheran Church." The frame and walls of the former building still remain but the other part of it have been so remodelled and modernized that it now bears little resemblance to its original self. The Lutherans were among the earliest established of the religious bodies in this county, the membership being largely among those of Dutch origin. Their first minister or missionary, in this county, the Rev. John G. Wigant, or Weant, as his name was sometimes spelled, was among the earliest of the Christian ministers here. Dr. Canniff in his history thus refers to him: "The second Lutheran clergyman to preach upon the Bay was the Rev. Mr. Weant. He lived a short distance below Bath, and went every four weeks to preach at Smith's Bay (in Marysburgh, where there was a large German settlement) and, in the meantime, preached to the Lutherans of Ernesttown, where he built a log church, the first there. Just where that log church was located is not mentioned, nor have we now any means of knowing."

Mr. John Collins Clark in his very interesting paper in regard to the first settlers on the front of Ernesttown makes reference to him, as the owner, at one time, of a lot a little east of Millhaven, which was afterwards owned by Abraham Amey, but he does not afterwards make reference to him. Just when he came is not easy to determine. He went to Dundas county in 1808. From the record of the Ebenezer Lutheran church at Big Creek in Fredericksburgh, he was here as early as May 1794, but whether earlier than that, or how much earlier is not now known. Very likely he was preaching quite as early as that in the neighborhood where St. Peter's was afterwards built. Whether the first log church already referred to was located there we do not know, but it seems probable that it was. There do not appear to be any records now in existence of his baptisms and marriages, or even the names of the members, in that part of Ernesttown.

There are records of four marriage ceremonies he attended to in the vicinity of Big Creek in 1796 and 1797—of Fralicks, Frett's, Gordaniers and Huffmans; there are also old marriage certificates now in existence in Prince Edward county of some he celebrated in Adolphustown. We hope that some of the old Ernesttown records may yet turn up.

ST. PETERSNOW UNION CHURCH.

Reference has been before made in The Express to the old deed of this church now in the possession of Mr. William Hogle, one of the present trustees. That deed was not dated until February 9th, 1819, but like several others of those early times, it is not at all probable that the deed was executed until years after the church was in use. Jonas Amey then granted the land to the Trustees of the Lutheran, Methodist and Presbyterian denominations and representatives of each were named. The Lutherans there at that time were, we understand, largely in majority and four of them were trustees:—Jacob Stover, Joseph Amey, Lodowick Hartman and Joseph Amey. The Methodists were represented by Peter Davy and the Presbyterians by Isaac Fraser.

The Lutheran members in the locality have all dwindled away; the Methodists and Presbyterians yet remain and the church is now jointly used by both, and is known as Union church. We understand it has always been regularly used as a place of worship from its first establishment. The descendants of all the early trustees are still living in that locality.

THE OLD BURYING GROUND.

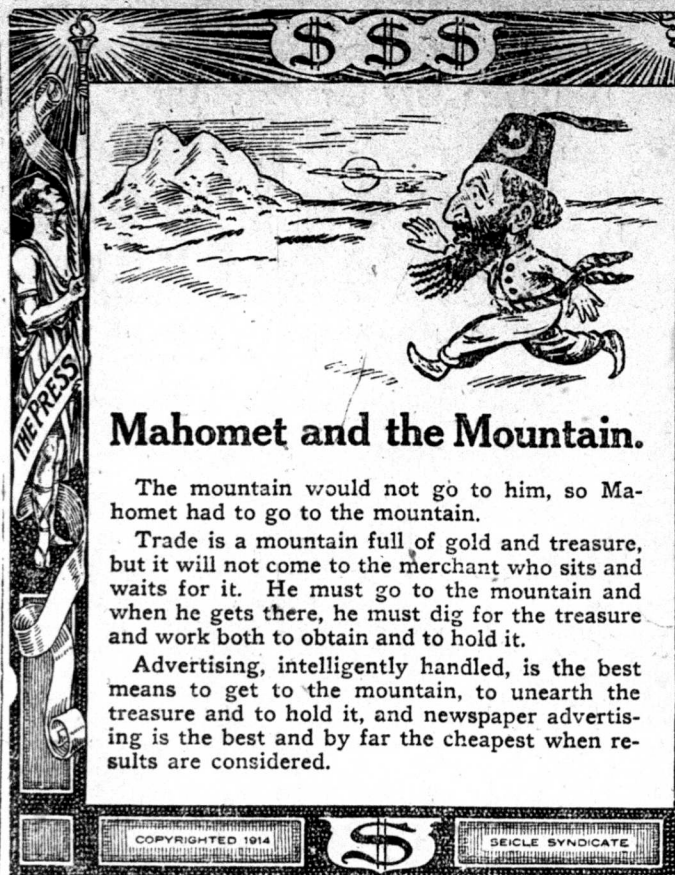

Surrounding the church is one of the oldest burying grounds in that part of the township, and there the first pioneer settlers in the locality nearly all have their last resting place. Of many of the earlier ones there is not now any record. They were buried years before headstones came much into use. Many of the names of the dead are not now obtainable.

During a recent visit to the historic old "Gods Acre" we noted the inscriptions on a number of the graves of former well-known and leading residents.

Apparently one of the oldest stones in the ground is one of grey slate in memory of John Ham, died July first, 1832, aged 78 years. He was the head of one of the very large and well-known families in this county, and, according to the old government records, he was a soldier in the British ranks during the time of the American revolution. Doubtless he came to this country with the early U. E. Loyalists and settled on a fine farm not far west of the church, which was the original home of the large Ham family. It is now occupied by his grandson, Mr. Norman Ham. His sons were active and influential men in their day, but all of them are gone now. The descendants of John Ham must now number some hundreds.

Besides that is another grey stone in memory of Elizabeth, wife of Henry Ham, died August 27th, 1831, aged 37 years. She was a daughter of the Rev. Robert Perry, and a member of a large and well-known family, a few of whom are still living. The late Ebenezer Ham, of Big Creek, was one of her children.

In another part of the ground is a stone in memory of Benjamin Ham, who lived and died at the old homestead. His death occurred November 9th, 1867, aged 65 years and 7 months. He was an able and influential man in his day and took a prominent part in political affairs. Over sixty years ago he was the candidate of the old Reform party in opposition to John Solomon Cartwright, but was defeated. He took an active interest in the first general Dominion election, in 1867, which occurred a few months

Mahomet and the Mountain.

The mountain would not go to him, so Mahomet had to go to the mountain.

Trade is a mountain full of gold and treasure, but it will not come to the merchant who sits and waits for it. He must go to the mountain and when he gets there, he must dig for the treasure and work both to obtain and to hold it.

Advertising, intelligently handled, is the best means to get to the mountain, to unearth the treasure and to hold it, and newspaper advertising is the best and by far the cheapest when results are considered.

TAMWORTH

On Thursday evening of last week nearly three hundred people attended the public meeting held at the township hall in conjunction with the short course in stock and seed judging. Besides the officers of the local branch of the Farmer's Institute and the short course speakers, the audience were fortunate in hearing such men as Capt. Robson of London, Rob. Telfer of Port Elgin and Dr. Cowan of Galt, who are touring this part of the Province in connection with Stallion enrollment. A very attractive programme was provided and the evening passed very quickly with speeches and song, it being past eleven before the hall was cleared.

One feature of the evening was the public speaking contest for the boys of the Agricultural class. Nine students entered and competed for the prize a gold watch chain—given by Mr. J. E. Harrison, Reeve of Sheffield.

All the contestants did exceptionally well and everyone of them will make with a little practise a very interesting and convincing speaker. It requires considerable courage to get up and face an audience for the first time especially one of familiar faces and the boys were congratulated upon their effort. The prize was won by Leo Flynn with his speech on "The Farmer's Boy," and a second prize a setting of eggs given by Mr. Curran—was carried away by Clarence Neville who spoke upon "Beef Cattle." The other contestants were Messrs Dowling, Breault, Carrol, Dennis, Neville, York, Fraser, Stinson, and Close.

The following speakers also addressed the meeting. Dr. H. G. Reed, Georgetown; Mr. C. E. Bain, Tauton; Mr. G. B. Curran, Napanee; Mr. C. A. Tregillus, Napanee.

The Historical Meeting.

Dr. L. E. Horning of the University of Toronto was the lecturer at the regular February meeting of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society
last Friday evening. His subject was "Canada and the Empire." We shall not attempt to give a detailed report of Dr. Horning's talk because we do not feel that we could do it
justice without carefully kept notes.
These we failed to keep. He covered
so much ground in such an interesting and instructive manner that it is unfortunate that the whole lecture could not have been preserved. Starting with a rather hurried but nevertheless clear explanation of the present condition of the component parts of the Empire and referring to their relative geographical positions he outlined the status of each. With this picture in mind he took up Canada
and her position in the Empire. Dr.
Horning is certainly an optimist on the future of his native land. We may not all agree with his opinions or
with his advanced theories upon the manner in which Canada will work out her problems but we do agree with his views that Canada is bound to be one of the important countries in the world and that the next hundred years will see our country have a growth and development
that will attract the attention of the civilized world. The speaker's style was clear and simple and he had not uttered many sentences before he had enlisted the sympathy of his entire audience and carried them with him
in his close and well reasoned arguments. It was evident that he had given much careful study to the subject in hand and was intensely earnest
in his views upon the imperial problems with which we are now and will be confronted. His hearers followed him with close attention for an hour
and a half and the spontaneous rounds of applause at the conclusion of the lecture were ample guarantee of the satisfaction they all experienced in hearing such an able address, which no doubt started many a train of thought which in the end must produce a good and lasting effect. The president of the society expressed the sense of the meeting when he thanked
Dr. Horning for again coming to Napanee to lecture and when he extended to him a cordial invitation to lecture here again at an early date.
The March meeting was announced on Friday evening, the 27th, when Prof.
W. L. Grant of Queen's University,
Kingston, will give a lecture, illustrated with lantern slides, on "A Puritan at the Court of Louis XIV." The meeting closed with "God save the King."

A GREAT FEAST A FAMISHED WORLD

Mankind Starved for Message of Divine Love and Mercy.

Reign of Sin and Death Nearing Conclusion—Kingdom of God Soon to Be Established—Introduced by "a Time of Trouble"—Overruled To Constitute a Channel of Blessing
—"Sorrow Shall Flee Away."

March 1.—Pastor Russell's topic to-day was an interesting one from the text, "In this Mountain shall the Lord of Hosts make unto all people a feast of fat things."—Isaiah 25:6.

The Pastor began by explaining that throughout the Scripture a mountain is used as symbolic of a kingdom; and a hill, of a lesser government. The Mountain, or Kingdom, of God is to be established "in the top of the mountains." His text, he declared, refers to this Kingdom, for which we still properly pray, "Thy Kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth, as it is in Heaven." The Church of Christ, in process of selection since Pentecost, is sometimes styled the Kingdom, because its members, when glorified, will constitute the Kingdom class.

The Pastor then showed that at His Second Advent our Lord will take His great power and reign as King of kings and Lord of lords. He demonstrated that the signs of the times indicate that the setting up of the Kingdom is very near. This good news should cause world-wide rejoicing. Very soon, he declared, the earth will be filled with the knowledge of God.

A Feast In This Mountain.

The announcement of the nearness of Messiah's Kingdom, the Pastor said, will be appreciated in proportion as its character and work are understood. Practically all the creeds maintain that our Lord's Second Coming will signify the end of all probation, and will usher in a great burning day for all except an elect few. He then demonstrated that this view is unscriptural, and results from a literal interpretation of a few highly figurative texts.

The Pastor declared that all living in wilful sin should realize that the establishment of God's Kingdom will mean a Reign of Righteousness, opposed to every form of immorality, trickery, sham, injustice and iniquity. Those who seek to live in harmony with the Divine Law have every reason to long for the coming of the Kingdom as the most desirable thing imaginable—"the desire of all nations."

Then the Pastor called attention to Scriptures which describe the Time of Trouble marking the change from Satan's kingdom to Messiah's Rule. This will include all nations. But this Trouble Time will be Divinely overruled to be a channel of blessing, by preparing the hearts of mankind for the Message of Divine Love, cen-

A Source of Glory.

All Scotsmen take a pride in their native land, but none more than the old gardener of Duddingstone, of whom the New York Tribune tells the following story:

The gardener was showing to a tourist the beauties of the loch and of the little village. It was evening, and as he expatiated on the lovely scene and on the glories of his country, the moon rose over a hill.

The old man stopped short in the middle of a speech and gazed at the moon in admiration.

After a moment he turned to the tourist and said: "There's a moon fur ye! I tell ye, mon, we're a grand nation!"

Sharks and Divers.

The fully equipped modern diver does not dread sharks in the depths, though there are cases on record where these monsters have bitten savagely at the air pipe, causing a serious leak and almost drowning the man before he could be hauled up. Sharks are, however, notoriously timid, and all the experienced diver has to do to frighten them away is to open one of the air valves in his dress and cause a stream of bubbles to rise up all around him, whereupon the "tiger of the deep" will make off in abject terror.

Then the Pastor called attention to Scriptures which describe the Time of Trouble marking the change from Satan's kingdom to Messiah's Rule. This will include all nations. But this Trouble Time will be Divinely overruled to be a channel of blessing, by preparing the hearts of mankind for the Message of Divine Love, centered in Christ's redemptive work at Calvary.

What Say the Scriptures?

The Pastor explained numerous Scriptures descriptive of Messiah's Kingdom, dwelling especially upon those which liken the good time coming to a great feast. These intimate that mankind have been starving for the Message of Divine grace; that countless millions of our race have died in ignorance and superstition, famished for lack of the Word of God.

There are many hungry hearts in the world, the Pastor believes. Many whose bodies are well nourished have famished hearts, crying out for love and sympathy. God, who reads the hearts, has prepared this feast which will satisfy every righteous desire. Those fed at the bountiful table spread for the Church can approximate the feast to be spread before the world in the next Age.

The Pastor then pointed out a few differences between these two feasts:

(1) The Church's feast is one of promises, which must be partaken in faith, while the world's feast will be the realities of Restitution—mental, moral and physical health.

(2) The Church's feast is spiritual, relating to a Heavenly Kingdom glory and honor, while the world's feast will consist of earthly bounties and blessings—all that was lost in Adam's fall and redeemed at Calvary.

The Kingdom Work.

The Pastor next discussed his context. The Lord through the Prophet first describes the feast of blessings, and then portrays the destruction of things injurious to humanity. The veil of ignorance and superstition hinders mankind from seeing that their Creator is their Friend, that righteousness and truth are to their advantage, and that God's ways are true and righteous altogether. This veil is to be destroyed. Then the sunlight of the knowledge of God's goodness will shine into the hearts of humanity.

For six thousand years death has swallowed up the human family. It is conservatively estimated that twenty thousand millions have gone into the tomb. With the establishment of the Kingdom death will cease to control the race, the tomb will be forced to give up its victims, and thus "Death will be swallowed up in victory." Hereafter none shall die except for wilful sin.

HUMAN BROTHERHOOD.

When Disaster Came All Were Kin and Equality Reigned.

Friends who went through the horrors of the San Francisco earthquake in 1906 and kept their spiritual senses alert tell me that its most poignant experience was not one of horror or of pity, but of the almost miraculous attainment of human brotherhood.

"Just after the disaster, when rich and poor waited in line together for their allowance of bread and milk, I saw," says a friend, "a rich woman from the St. Francis hotel lying asleep on a doorstep with her head on a muff. A long sable coat was thrown over her, and under one corner of it a young Japanese boy, a perfect stranger to her, was curled up asleep. * * *

"Everybody was everybody's friend, and, though we were all dog tired, there was not a word of complaint or ill nature. To bivouac together in the park and care for each other's babies around fires of driftwood gathered on the beach transformed men and women into defenseless children of the earth, revealed each to each by their innate loveliness.

"Common danger and mutual helpfulness, common misfortune, common work, common confrontation with the elemental, brought a swift achievement of almost ideal brotherhood. A crushing blow made all the world for a time kin."—Atlantic Monthly.

TAKING A PHOTOGRAPH.

So Easy Nowadays That It Positively Peevied the Old Timer.

"I'm in an organization where the members are expected to furnish the secretary with photographs of themselves."

"Yes?"

"Well, I hadn't been to a photographer's for twenty years. I hated to go. I remembered the old head clamp, and the twisted spine, and the awkward hands, and the depressed chin, and the silly smile. It seemed to me worse than the dentist's. But I had to go. I walked into the photographer's big room like a Christian martyr, and the operator pointed out a chair, and I sat down, and he said, 'That's all.' I asked him to repeat it. He did. Then I got out of the chair and went back to my office."

"Well?"

"Well, I don't feel right about it. It didn't seem to me worth while. I don't think the photographer treated me right. It looked to me as if he had a disagreeable job on his hands and wanted to shirk it. He should have fussed over me more. What do I know about posing? Besides, there wasn't time. 'That's all,' he said, and flipped me out of the chair. They didn't snub me that way twenty years ago, no, sir!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

have a saying about the French, "Are the French thieves?" "No, but bona parte (a good part of them) are." And when a visitor goes to one city after another, sees one building after another
that was robbed of its chief treasures by Napoleon, he begins to understand this savage sentiment. It is even stronger in Malta, which island was virtually swept clean of its splendors
of medieval and renaissance art by the conqueror. The Maltese loot is all somewhere at the bottom of Alexandria bay, the ship on which Napoleon
loaded it having foundered there.

Wat Tyler's Rebellion.

Attempts to fix by statute the wages
of agricultural laborers in England
were largely responsible for the great revolt of 1381, or "Wat Tyler's rebellion." It represented the despairing effort of landowners to get back to the level of wages before the black death came to make labor dear. But the lord of the manor overshot the mark. He wanted the day wage kept down to 4 cents to 6 cents a day. Had he put 6 cents to 8 cents in the schedule there might have been no rebellion.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE

Howard Ferguson, M.P.P. for Grenville reads letter written by Gustave Evanturel, M.P.P., for Prescott, offering his services in the house to the liquor interests and asking in return $10,000.

Extract from the letter:
"I have pledged myself as a true friend of this association, (the hotel-keepers') and prepared to fight in the House and vote against my leader on that question of abolishing the bar."

"I am and always have been a true friend of the liquor interests."
"I am a poor man living only upon my small sessional allowance and do expect that the Association will see its way clear to help me along and in my letter to the Board I ask at least $10,000, payable $3,000 now and the balance per instalments in order to support me. I am prepared for that salary to be the defender of the Association and introduce before the legislature any amendments to the Government measures to restrict the liquor traffic."

"I believe that it would be useful to your Association to have an M.P.P.
who would be there in the house to accept and present to the House all
its suggestions coming from your important body."

"I will sign any agreement which your Board will require to be sure that I am the man who will fight for your cause in the House."

"I would like to have the matter settled up as soon as possible as I have to be financially supported at the present time."

Mr. N. W. Rowell and the other Liberal members read Evanturel out of the party at once whenever it is learned from Evanturel himself that he actually did write the letter.

Mr. Rowell asks Evanturel to resign.

Hon. J. J. Foy, acting Prime Minister, hints that the Government will take further action against Evanturel
to maintain the dignity of the House.
Mr. Rowell assures the Government of the co-operation of the Opposition in any course they may pursue to this end.

MR. ROWELL'S COURSE.

From members of the Legislature, Conservatives and Liberals, from newspapers—Government and Opposition—from prominent citizens of Toronto and from all parts of the Province, in fact from points outside the Province, has spontaneous praise for Mr. N. W. Rowell for the courageous action he has taken in the Evanturel incident. He has shown definitely that he practises what he preaches.
When he found a canker in his own party and among his own members he did not falter a moment but read the member out of the party, demanded
his resignation and declared there was no justification for his action. This stand is also one taken by the liberal press. It is already recognized as a hopeful sign of the times.

Mr. Rowell's advocacy of the Abolish the Bar policy has also been strengthened by this undoubtedly unfortunate incident. Temperance men, Conservatives and Liberals alike, now
realize as they never realized before what Mr. Rowell has had to contend with, not only the opposition of his political opponents and of the liquor interests, but also the plotting of one of his own members "a true friend to the liquor interests." It is now apparent beyond a doubt that if the reform of Abolish the Bar is to be accomplished at the next general election, all temperance men, irrespective of party, aided by the combined
forces of the women of the Province

The next morning the papers told of a man in which a householder had been wounded after shooting one of the burglars, who succeeded in escaping. All the facts of the case indicated my patient of the night was the burglar who had been recovered. The householder recovered.

A question stared at me: Did the of the medical profession allow go to the police and tell them I knew, or did my promise bind secrecy? I thought it over all day and finally decided that I had no right to say anything about the matter until three more trips in the manner. All this time I watched the papers, but no trace was found of the burglars. When I made my third trip I told the man who had first seen me that my fee would be $50. I took from a large roll some bills and handed them to me without a word. He drove me home, and that was the last I ever saw of either of them.

"It was a good many years ago, and I often wondered whether I did not violate that man's confidence," said a member of the group. "The medical profession has no right to shield a criminal. Women and children should be given the greatest protection we can give them, but no word given a criminal binding."

"I suppose it had turned out that the man was not the burglar in question, I believe he was, but it might have been otherwise."

"It is true," said a third. "It was my duty to keep your promise so long as I had no actual knowledge that the man was a criminal. Where you made your mistake was in making a ridiculous agreement in the first place."

"Let a man, dangerously injured?" asked the first speaker. "Number one, when I first agreed to see the case had no particularly suspicious appearance. political opponents and of the liquor interests, but also the plotting of one of his own members "a true friend to the liquor interests." It is now apparent beyond a doubt that if the reform of Abolish the Bar is to be accomplished at the next general election, all temperance men, irrespective of party, aided by the combined forces of the women of the Province must fight for Mr. Rowell. The liquor interests to a man are united. The temperance forces must be similarly united.

OTHER FEATURES OF THE LEGISLATURE

The Government votes down three Opposition proposals:

1. To grant Tax Reform, asked for in petitions from country and city alike.
2. To censure the Government for not doing what it promised two years ago to introduce anti-trading legislation and for not proposing either to abolish the bar or take other effective steps to control the effects of the liquor traffic.
3. To inquire into the question of unemployment and to establish a department of labour.

DOMINION ALLIANCE

Once again at their annual convention on February 27th the Ontario Branch of the Dominion Alliance endorsed N. W. Rowell and his policy of abolishing the bar, a policy it declared, deserving the hearty support of the temperance electors.

THE ISLAND OF THE STAIRS

Being a True Account of Certain Strange and Wonderful Adventures of Master John Hampdon, Seaman, and Mistress Lucy Wilberforce, Gentlewoman, In the Great South Seas.

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Copyright, 1912, by Cyrus Townsend Brady

"Oh, thank God!" her voice came through the darkness hysterically, "I thought you were killed."

"No," I answered, slowly rising to my knee and stretching my members to see if I had control of them, which, fortunately, I soon discovered I had. "I was stunned but otherwise I believe I am not much hurt. How is it with you?"

"I am well and unharmed."

"Thank God!"

"For heaven's sake, water," interrupted a trembling hoarse, anguished voice.

"Who speaks?" I asked.

"I, Pimball, I am pinned to the ground, my legs are crushed, my back is broken, I am dying."

"There should be a lantern here," I said. "I placed it—let me think—where did I place it?"

"It was just to the left of the opening," answered my little mistress.

I was turned around and giddy, but I managed to fix the direction of the entrance by Pimball's groans and by good fortune presently found the lantern. It would burn but a few hours, but we never needed a light as we did then. My flint and steel I carried ever in my pocket, and to kindle a flickering flame was but the work of a moment. If I had not possessed it I would have given years of my life for that light which threw a faint illumination about the place.

There, opposite me, where I had stationed her, protected by a niche in the cave from the rain of rocks which had beaten me down, was my mistress, safe and unharmed. I stepped toward her and with a low cry of thankfulness she fell into my arms. I soothed her for a moment and then turned to the other account of the chamber

We wandered in and out among the coral until it seemed to me that we had gone miles, although in reality it could have been but a few hundred yards.

At last we came to a place too low and too narrow for me to pass, although I might, perchance, have thrust her through.

"You see," she said, "this is the end."

"No," said I.

I still had the ax with me and the sword which I had thrust into my belt. The rock seemed soft. Lying down upon my back and covering my eyes with one hand, I struck at it with the ax, thus enlarging the passage. The water beneath me was deathly cold, the candle in the lantern was burning lower and lower, but I hung on. Never did I work so in all my life as then. At last I loosened a huge rock, which fell suddenly upon me. Had I not seen it coming and dropped the ax and stayed its progress with both upraised hands it might have crushed me. As it was, it fell fairly upon my breast. I could not throw it aside; the way was too narrow. I held it up in my hands and forced my way through, although what I should meet or where I should bring up on the other side I knew not. I thrust hard and harder with my feet and presently my way was clear, and I shoved myself through the opening. With one great final effort I rolled the rock aside and then lay on my back on the sand, breathless, exhausted.

She dragged herself over my body and through the passage I had thus made and then knelt by my side, kissed me, murmuring words I did not dare to listen to lest I should go mad with love. And indeed I was so exhausted

ing out her hand: "If you will help me I can go anywhere."

I still had my sword. I drew it and led on, keeping well under the shelter of the cliffs. We walked up the end toward the giant stairs. There were men, islanders, at the top of the wall, but my first glance told me that we had nothing to fear from them, for the stairs were gone. They were but a scattered heap of stones. The earthquake had crumbled the work of the builders of bygone years, and as the stairs had fallen away they had left the cliff sheer and bare for a hundred feet. They couldn't come at us.

"It is an act of God," said I, "that has broken down the stairs."

"But there may be another way of descent," she said after a moment.

"Oh, let us leave this dreadful island!"

I had no hope that the dinghy had been spared, but its place was not far away, and we walked to it in silence. It was gone. A tidal wave had followed the earthquake. The canoes in which the islanders had come had been dashed to pieces and their keepers killed. The survivors were prisoners on the island unless their friends came to their help and even then until they could devise some way of getting down the cliff. And we, too, were prisoners. Some of our gear, the compass, some provisions which I had stored in the crannies of the rock were still there, but they were useless to us. Something else had happened. The earthquake had broken the vast barrier reef. Before us was a practicable passage to the sea!

If we only had a boat! I turned to the canoes hopeful of finding one seaworthy, and as I did so my little mistress caught me by the arm.

"Look!" she cried, pointing far up the horizon.

I turned, and there, bottom upward, floated the dinghy. The sight of her was like a draft of wine. I turned and ran up the sand, followed by my lady. When opposite the boat I kicked off my shoes—I had on little else but shirt and trousers—jumped into the lagoon, swam to the dinghy and towed her ashore. Assisted by Mistress Lucy, I turned her over. I then hunted up the few things we had saved, with a little store of coconuts which we had accumulated in one of the caves, shipped the oars, which, being tied to the rowlocks, had not been washed away, and shoved off.

The mast was still lashed to the thwarts, and a boat cloak had been caught under the forward thwart. The painter was still fastened to a ring bolt in the bow, and as soon as I had rowed through the narrow entrance I stepped the mast and improvised a sail with the boat cloak and the painter. The breeze blew softly. We passed the island and then set our course by the compass to the eastward, headed for the great South American coast so many miles away.

We had gone through many perils, but had sustained them all. Fortune, as if ashamed of her allotted trouble, made it up to us in the end, for in a few days we fell in with a Spanish ship of war in the service of the viceroy of Peru, which had been exploring the south seas and had been driven far out of her course by the same storm which had wrecked the Rose of Devon. Commander Don Antonio Remove her farther from me.

We were alone. Good Mistress Lin had given us her parlor for noon. I took from my pocket canvas pouches filled with her ure and laid them on the table.

"These, Mistress Wilberforce, I, formally enough, although I was beating rapidly, "are yours. She waved her hand as if of the small moment.

"We have discussed that before said. "What of yourself?"

"Last night," I replied, "I went on the docks. A company's ship for India next week. They're chief mate, and if my reference they will engage me."

She extended her hand to me caught it. I kissed it passionately when I made to let it go she not.

"Master Hampdon," she said, at me, her eyes brighter than tmonds and bluer than the s upon the table, "you are a fool."

"Right well do I know that tress," said I, striving to fetch to match her own.

"And a blind man as well."

illumination about the place.

There, opposite me, where I had stationed her, protected by a niche in the cave from the rain of rocks which had beaten me down, was my mistress, safe and unharmed. I stepped toward her and with a low cry of thankfulness she fell into my arms. I soothed her for a moment and then turned to the other occupant of the chamber. The entrance was blocked up, the rock had settled down. Pimball's legs were broken and his back as well. It was impossible to release him—what lay upon him weighed tons and tons.

"You murdering bound!" I cried, "you have brought this upon us." But he would only plead for water, disregarding my reproaches.

I was for killing him with my cutlass, which I picked up, but she would not have it so. She filled a half coconut shell with water and brought it to him. She bathed his brow and gave him some to drink. It gave him temporary relief, but his minutes were numbered. His life was going out by seconds.

"God!" he cried as his eyes caught the gleam of the gold and silver; "the treasure!" He stretched out his hand toward it and then stopped. "I am undone," he choked out with a fearful scream. "Mistress!"

"Yes?"

"Forgive"—
Indeed, she forgave him. I make no doubt, but her forgiveness came too late, for his head dropped—he had been looking sideways—and his face buried itself in the wet sand.

"Is he dead?" she asked, awestruck.
I nodded. No closer inspection was needed to establish the truth of that fact.

"And we, too, shall die," she said, shuddering. "We are buried here in the bowels of the earth, in this treasure-lined prison."

"The earthquake which closed the mouth of the cave may have opened the other end."

"It is possible," she answered, "but unlikely."

"And, besides, you remember the running stream on the other side, which we did not follow?"

"Yes."
"It must run somewhere."

"Well?"
"Where water runs man and woman may follow."

"At least it will do no harm to try."
"Come, then," said I, extending my hand to her and holding the lantern before me for pitfalls.

CHAPTER XVII.

In Which We Win Light, Life, Liberty and Love.

WE went down the cave. To find the water was easy. Sure enough, it led away through a narrow rift in what direction we could not tell, although its tendency was downward, and I knew it would come out upon the beach somewhere. It had not seemed to me as I examined it before the earthquake that the rift was more than enough to carry the water, but it had probably opened wider now by the shock, and so we followed it. Although sometimes the walls closed over the water course, making tunnels, we managed to force our way through them. I went in the advance, for I knew that what my bulk could pass would present little difficulty for her.

self through the opening. With one great final effort I rolled the rock aside and then lay on my back on the sand, breathless, exhausted.

She dragged herself over my body and through the passage I had thus made and then knelt by my side, kissed me, murmuring words I did not dare to listen to lest I should go mad with joy. And, indeed, I was so exhausted that I could scarcely credit that I had heard anything real. Presently, however, I staggered to my feet again. She had forgotten the lantern, but I went back after it.

We were in a more spacious cave. The stream, fed by other brooks, had become larger. The descent was much more rapid. The cliff wall was, I believe, narrower at the treasure cave than anywhere else in the island. It was, perhaps, not more than half a mile wide. We stumbled rapidly down the long vaulted passage to the other wall. As we approached it I half feared that the rock might be solid, and that the brook might plunge beneath it, but fortune did not do its worst for us. There was a rift in the wall, around which the brook ran. A long distance away appeared to me a spot of dimness. Recklessly we clasped hands and ran to the opening.

Alas, when we reached the light we found that the entrance was closed by a huge stone. It did not exactly fit the opening, and the light filtered around it. I stood panting, staring at it.

"Are we to be ended now," I cried, "after having come thus far? Stand clear," I shouted, not giving her time to answer.

Then with all my strength I swung the ax and struck the rock fair and square and by good fortune upon some fissure, for it shivered and a crack started. Once again, this time with tremendous force, I swung and struck. The ax sank into the stone, the heave shivered in my hand. It was a right good blow, if I do say it myself, for the rock was by this time fairly split in two, the pieces falling to the right and left. Still it was well in the entrance. We had not yet a clear passage.

I was mad now, as mad as I had been in the inner cave fighting for her. The blood rushed to my face, a mist to my eyes. I stooped down and with my hands I seized one piece of that rock and, with such strength as Heracles might have used, thrust it aside. My mistress stood staring at me in awe, also in terror. The way was opened.

We stepped out upon the sand. My clothes were torn to rags; blood was clotted in my hair and on my forehead; my face was black with sweat and dust. There were wounds on my arms and legs. I was a gory and horrible spectacle. Mistress Lucy had suffered no wounds, but her clothes were rent and torn. Her face was grimy and beneath the dust and earth stain it was as white as the cap of a wave.

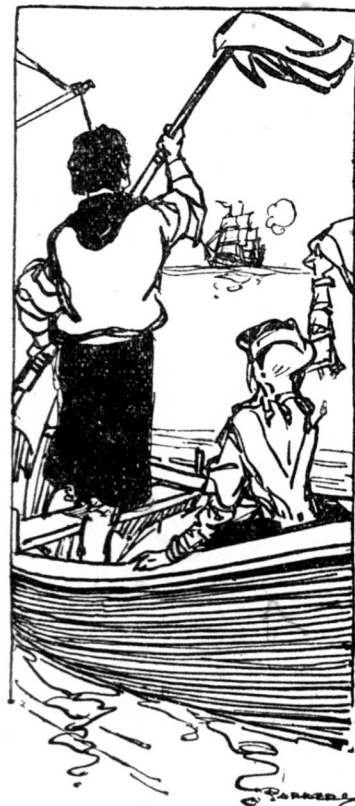

"Thanks to God," she said at last, "and you, we have won!"

I thought she would have fainted. I caught her by the arm, sat her down upon the island and sprinkled the water from the brook in her face until presently she revived.

"We are not safe yet," I urged. "There were hundreds of savages upon the island. They could not all have been in the cave. We must go warily. We cannot rest now."

"I am ready," she said with great spirit, getting to her feet and stretching my arms. For a few days we fell in with a Spanish ship of war in the service of the viceroy of Peru, which had been exploring the south seas and had been driven far out of her course by the same storm which had wrecked the Rose of Devon. Commander Don Antonio Recalde was an officer and a gentleman. There was no war between our English king and the Spanish monarch then, and he treated us courteously, gave us food and raiment, assigned a spare cabin to my mistress and berthed me aft with the officers. He was bound for Valparaiso, which in due course, without mishap, we reached. There we took ship for the Portuguese possessions on the other shore of the continent and thence we got a ship from Rio de Janeiro to Lisbon, and so at last we came to England and to Plymouth harbor, whence we had set forth nearly a year ago.

I paid the captain of the Spanish frigate which had picked us up with an emerald of great price, which he was loath to accept, but which we pressed upon him. We had little difficulty, through his kind offices, in selling another stone or two for ready money at Valparaiso, so we experienced no difficulties which could be avoided by the expenditure of money upon the way.

I took my mistress to the house of the devoted Master Ficklin, who, with that kindly woman, his sister, greeted us as if we had risen from the dead, and, greatly rejoicing in my lady's good fortune, gave us the warmest of welcomes. There I had what I expected would be my last interview with her. We had been thrown constantly together during the six months that had elapsed between our great adventures upon the Island of the Stairs and our arrival in England. We had discussed everything else, I think, but I had said naught of my love. Indeed, each league of sea over which we passed on our way homeward seemed to re-

Scallops Are Fine Now.

Fried scallops are usually the only choice on the average bill of fare, notwithstanding the fact that there are many delightful ways of preparing these little shellfish. The following may reveal some of their possibilities
to the housewife who is seeking new ways.

To one pint of scallops (washed and drained) use two tablespoonfuls of butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour, one beaten egg, one pint of hot milk, pepper and salt to taste. Melt the butter in a saucepan, take from the fire and add flour, stir until smooth and return to the stove and cook until it
bubbles, then add the hot milk, salt
and pepper and egg and let the mixture cook fifteen minutes. Then add the scallops and cook fifteen minutes longer. Serve on buttered toast and garnish the dish with watercress.
This is an excellent way to cook scallops, as it brings out their delicate flavor.

Another appetizing way to cook scallops is as follows: Wash and drain the scallops, make a smooth, rich cream sauce flavored with pepper, salt and onion juice. Let the sauce cook for ten or fifteen minutes, otherwise it will taste pasty, then add the scallops and cook slowly for ten minutes.
While this is cooking, prepare some peppers (as many as required) by washing, remove the stems, cutting a piece
from the top and taking out the seeds.
Stand the peppers in a baking pan and
fill them with the creamed scallops,
sprinkle with breadcrumbs and bake
until the crumbs are brown. Serve at once.

To Peel Oranges.

There is for sale a little knife that costs 13 cents. It is not really a knife, but it is a small piece of metal with a hook on one end that hooks under the orange skin and tears it open and pulls it from the orange. It is a great convenience, for it skins the orange without piercing the transparent inner skin that holds the pulp and juice in shape.

THE PRODUCTION OF HOGS.

To produce pork profitably hogs must feed and graze continuously on pastures and crops particularly planted for them, is the advice of experts of the farmers' co-operative branch of the bureau of plant industry, department of agriculture. Very seldom is the growing of hogs for slaughter a source of profit unless proper grazing and feeding methods are followed.

In the spring, summer and fall there are many crops for pasturing hogs, but during the winter the crops to select from are limited. On almost every farm the production and keeping of hogs in winter is expensive and generally it is not profitable, for the reason that large quantities of corn are fed without products of green crops. More winter grazing is needed, for which many crops are adapted. The most reliable are, however, rape, rye, oats, wheat and barley.

For grazing purposes these pasturing crops for hogs should be sown on specially well drained and prepared land that is either rich or has received a liberal application of manure. Good winter pasturage is not obtained except on the best drained lands.

The seeding should be heavy to insure a thorough planting. The young plants will grow slowly in the winter and many plants will be needed to furnish plenty of pasture. Crimson clover will do well with rape, rye, oats, wheat and barley and will mean an improvement on the land.

CROPS DURING 1913.

Report of Secretary of Agriculture Shows That They Have Fallen Off.

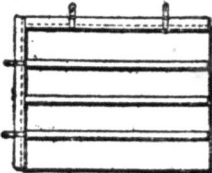

Very brief space is allotted this year to a discussion of the crops in the United States in the report of the secretary of agriculture. Special emphasis is laid on the fact that the figures quoted are estimates, and it is pointed out that this fact should be constantly kept in mind. From the estimates at hand it appears that the production of crops in 1913 was materially below the average, the yield per acre of all crops combined being smaller than in any year in the past decade with the exception of 1911. The corn crop, the most valuable product of this country, according to the estimates, fell below 2,500,000,000 bushels, which is smaller than any crop since 1903. Wheat production, with an estimated total of 753,000,000 bushels, is the largest ever recorded in this country. This crop was matured before the drought became effective. Brief mention is made as to crop conditions throughout the world. From the estimates it appears that there were increased areas sown to wheat, oats, barley, rye and corn and that the wheat acreage has probably yielded a record outturn. Barley, oats and rye are bountiful crops, but corn will probably give the poorest result in twenty years.

A DURABLE STACK COVER.

Will Be Found Convenient to Use For Many Purposes.

A very durable stack cover can be made of boards in sections about four feet wide by six feet long. Place four boards one inch by four feet by six inches side by side and fasten together with braces. Paint joints on upper side and paint bats before covering the joints. Do not run bats way to the top, but run one bat along the top, extending over about two inches on half of them and put no bats on the other half, so that the bat will cover them both. Put bats on right side of each section so that it will cover the edge of next section. Place barn hasps on the bats so that they will fit staples on the companion section. Care should be taken to get these hasps and staples rightly located. These covers will be found to be very convenient to use as stack covers and for machinery, chicken coops, pig shade, cattle shade, etc. Being light and movable, they can be put to a great number of uses and, being rigid, are not easily blown away, nor will they sag.—Iowa Homestead.

Winter Care of Peach Trees.

Peach trees are especially subject to the attacks of the San Jose scale. The bark of infested trees is covered with a crust of grayish scales, the insects multiplying rapidly and finally killing the tree. The remedy is spraying with lime-sulphur during the winter. When trees are badly infested it may be necessary to prune them back severely before applying the spray. Take care to burn all the wood cut from the trees.

POULTRY BREEDING.

An Oregon Hen Lays Three Hundred Eggs Within a Year.

The 300 egg hen has arrived! At least Oregon claims to have her, says the Country Gentleman. This appears to be the world's record for fowls. The Oregon champion deserves the ribbon for America, and her record is all the more convincing since she was one of a pen in which another hen laid 291 eggs. The best five hens of the flock are said to have exceeded 280 eggs each, while the entire flock of forty hens averaged more than 210 eggs each a year.

While it is true that high records, achieved by special breeding and feeding, may have little significance to the commercial poultryman, they do give more grounds for the hope that the commercial hen with the ability of producing 200 eggs or thereabouts each year may some time not be rare. Of course the 200 egg hen is no more the commercial standard today than is the cow that can produce 1,000 pounds of butter in a year, but no one will deny that the 1,000 pound cow has had a lot to do with the formation of herds that average 700 pounds a year. Likewise, with the 300 egg hen a fact, there is more reason to suppose that the 200 egg commercial hen is coming.

This achievement with the hen is of more significance because it has come so early in the history of intelligent poultry breeding. Improvement of the dairy cow dates back almost a century; improvement of the hen for egg production is a matter of less than a generation. The ease with which conditions surrounding the fowl can be controlled and the rapidity with which generations may be produced have, of course, made this quick improvement possible. Yet we know so little of Electricity For Chickens.

Before the London Royal Society of Arts, Thorne Baker, the electrician, advocated the application of electricity to chicken farming. Experiments, he said, had proved that chickens could be grown under electric stimulus at about double the normal rate and with a mortality practically nonexistent. An induction coil giving a one inch spark could successfully treat 1,000 chickens.

more significance because it has come so early in the history of intelligent poultry breeding. Improvement of the dairy cow dates back almost a century; improvement of the hen for egg production is a matter of less than a generation. The ease with which conditions surrounding the fowl can be controlled and the rapidity with which generations may be produced have, of course, made this quick improvement possible. Yet we know so little of the principles of breeding with respect to fowls that the optimist is justified in predicting some startling records for the future, when the real utility hen is developed.

The poultryman must be faithful to his task. He needs to stick to a plan of breeding with the same tenacity that the early stockmen used, and results will be just as surely forthcoming. The hen is no more subject to chance than other live stock.

The up to date farmer is always busy laying his plans for the next season's work, no matter whether it is summer or winter just ahead.

Make Flats In Winter.

Make a lot of flats this winter for use in the garden. A flat is a shallow box of convenient size used for starting seedlings, for rooting cuttings or for carrying potted plants, pots, soil or other material. Many uses will be found for the flat, and it is advisable to have a good supply on hand. Soap or other boxes obtained from a grocer cut down to two and a half or three inches in depth make good flats.

A quantity of flats will be found very useful when gardening operations begin next spring.

FRUIT AND SHADE TREES.

Now is the time to attend to old fruit and shade trees that are overgrown with moss and lichens, which harbor a horde of injurious insects.

Make a compound of commercial caustic soda, one pound, and an equal quantity of crude potash. Mix each separately with water; then mix the two solutions together, stirring in a pound of soft soap and adding sufficient water to make ten gallons of the complete mixture. Smaller quantities can be made in the same proportions.

Care must be exercised in using this mixture not to get it in the eyes or on the clothes, and gloves should be worn in preparing and using it.

Apply the compound with a syringe, brush or sprayer to destroy the moss, lichens and hibernating insects such as the woolly aphis, codling moth, caterpillars and scale, clearing out any other insects that may be lurking in the trees.

A Natural Sundial.

There is no need for clocks on the Aegean sea whenever the sun is shining. There nature has arranged her only timepiece, one that does not vary with the passing centuries. This natural time marker is the largest sun dial in the world. Projecting into the blue waters of the sea is a large promontory which lifts its head 3,000 feet above the waves. As the sun swings round the pointed shadow of the mountain just touches one after the other a number of small islands, which are at exact distances apart, and act as hour marks on the great dial.

Concrete Roads Exceed Farmer's Expectations

THIS LETTER FROM MR. GEO. W. BURT, of Redford, Wayne County, Michigan, shows how well satisfied the farmers of that section are with concrete roads. Nearly one hundred miles have been built in Wayne County.

"Mr. Edward N. Hines,
Board of County Road Commissioners,
Wayne County, Detroit, Mich.

Dear Sir:—

Our concrete roads are far ahead of the expectations of the majority of us farmers. Where we used to be two days marketing fifty bushels of produce, we now market twice as much in one day, and can go to the city anytime we want to. We do not have to wait till the roads are good so we can go. Also, our horses and waggons will last twice as long.

Hoping you will keep right on building these roads, and that the county will stand back of this movement, I remain,

Yours truly,

(Sgd.) Geo. W. Burt

Redford, Wayne County, Mich.

Concrete Roads

are the best, cheapest and most satisfactory roads that can be built. Best, because they permit bigger loads, increase land values and improve conditions generally. Cheapest, because they are permanent and require practically no repairs, which permits road taxes to be spent in building more good roads. Most satisfactory, because they are open to traffic every day in the year, lower cost of marketing and cost of living and increase the farmer's profits.

Good Roads literature telling all about concrete roads will be sent, free, to everyone interested. Write to

DIYCK KITCHEN

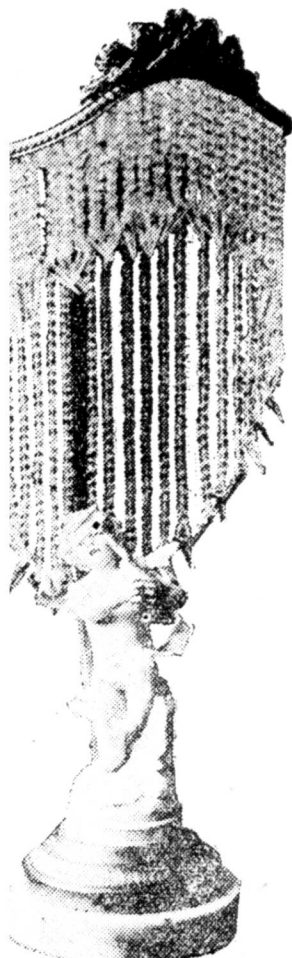

In Old Farmhouse Remodeled Into Dutch Interior.

S OF COBBLESTONES.

partment Trim Painted Gray. Red In Pottery—Chimney and Add to the Very Quaint Effect of the Arrangements.

A healthy woman is remodeling an old farmhouse into a modern home. The kitchen has walls made of old cobbles found in the neighborhood. It has a pointed ceiling about ten feet high at the peak, with old beams fastened with pins in an old fashioned way. In remodeling her kitchen she wishes to keep as many of the old features as possible, so she has whitewashed the walls, allowed the high ceiling to remain and is having worked out a color scheme of white, gray and red which will be most pleasing.

A large five foot range will be set with a hearth of red brick on the sides. The old red brick chimney

STYLE IN NEW ELECTROLIER.

I also add its note of color, as the immense copper boiler near the range. The beams of the ceiling are to be painted terra cotta, and many articles of pottery, like casseroles and big jugs, will be in harmony.

Used While You Sleep

All the new trims will be painted gray, which, with the whitewashed walls showing the old cobbles and the brick red in pottery, chimney and hearth, will make a kitchen which reminds one of the pictures of some of the Dutch painters of interiors.

For rooms furnished in the old time effect the very modern electrolier pictured, carried out in colonial design with prism trimmings, is one of the latest novelties.

Kitchen Keynotes.

A very good way to save the coal bill will be found by dissolving half a teaspoonful of saltpeter in half a cupful of water; then pour over a scuttle of coal.

To bleach white goods that have become yellow dip them in strong blue water after washing, let them become very blue and then hang out to dry. When they are washed they will be thoroughly bleached.

After filling a rubber water bottle with hot water it is a good plan to press the side of the bottle before putting in the stopper. This allows all the steam to escape, and there is little danger of the seams coming undone, no matter how boiling hot the water may be.

To remove scorch from linen use the juice of an onion. Bake a large onion and squeeze out the juice through a piece of muslin; mix with an ounce of fuller's earth, a little finely shredded soap and a wineglassful of vinegar. Boil together till the soap has dissolved, leave till cold and then apply the preparation to the scorched linen. Let it dry and then wash in the usual way.

Large holes in the knees and heels of socks and stockings, if mended as follows, will be found to wear longer, look neater and be more comfortable than if mended in the usual way: Take some strong black net, rub out any stiffness with the hand, cut slightly larger than the hole and tack neatly on the wrong side. Then darn out and into the net on the right side until the hole is well covered. The darning will hardly be seen, and you will be delighted with the results.

Its Advantage.

"I want to get a certificate of membership in a wanderlust club."
"Well, that is one society where you can be in good standing when you get your walking papers."

CANDY RECIPES.

Old and New Ways of Making Sweets For Children and Grownups.

No matter how much candy one is able to buy, there is a pleasure in making certain varieties of sweets at home. Besides, the home manufactured product is much cheaper and purer than the kinds purchased in the shops for small sums of money.

When making candy granulated sugar is preferable. Candy should not be stirred while boiling, and cream of tartar should not be added until the sirup begins to boil. Butter should be put in when the candy is almost done. Flavorings are more delicate when not boiled in candy, but added afterward.

Cocoanut cream candy is delicious made by this recipe: One cocoanut, one and one-half pounds of granulated sugar. Put sugar and milk of cocoanut together, heat slowly until the sugar is melted, then boil five minutes; add cocoanut (grated finely), boil ten minutes longer and stir constantly to prevent burning. Pour on buttered plates and cut in squares. The candy will take about two hours to harden. When cold cut into small squares.

Candied Popcorn.—Put into an iron kettle one tablespoonful of butter, three tablespoonfuls of water, one teacupful of white pulverized sugar, then throw in three quarts of nicely popped corn. Stir briskly until the candy is evenly distributed over the corn. Take the kettle from the fire and stir until it is cooled a little and each grain is crystallized with the sugar and separate. Be careful not to burn the corn.

Cream Candy.—One pound of granulated sugar, three tablespoonfuls of vinegar, one teaspoonful of extract of lemon, one teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Add a little water to moisten the sugar and boil until brittle. Put in the extract and turn out quickly on buttered plates. When cool pull until white and cut into squares.

Ice Cream Candy.—Three cupfuls of sugar, crushed or cut loaf; a little less than one-half cupful of vinegar, one and one-half cupfuls of cold water, piece of butter the size of a walnut. Flavor with extract of vanilla. Boil until it hardens, then pull until white.

Good Dishwashing Machine.

Dishwashing is still the bugaboo of many women, so any device that can assist this part of the work deserves to be used and used extensively. A new washer is just on the market which has been tested with good results. The makers claim that it washes the dishes from the average family meal in three minutes. It washes the silver and glass as well as the dishes, and, as it uses boiling water, the dishes need not be dried. It is impossible to break a dish with this washer, which in itself is a wonderful recommendation. It occupies the same space as a kitchen chair and, as it is on rollers, can be moved easily from place to place.

Fireless cooker comes first in the list.

Gas griddles are heat conservers.

Combination teakettle and double boiler saves time.

LIFE THREATENED BY KIDNEY DISEASE

His Health In A Terrible State Until He Took "Fruit-a-tives"

B. A. KELLY, Esq.

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., Aug. 26th, 1913.

"About two years ago, I found my health in a very bad state. My kidneys were not doing their work, and I was all run down in condition. I felt the need of some good remedy, and having seen 'Fruit-a-tives' advertised, I decided to try them. Their effect I found more than satisfactory. Their action was mild and the result all that could be expected.

"My kidneys resumed their normal action after I had taken upwards of a dozen boxes and I regained my old-time vitality. Today, I am as well as ever, the best health I have ever had."

B. A. KELLY

"Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest Kidney remedy in the world. It acts on the bowels and the skin as well as the Kidneys and thereby soothes and cures any Kidney soreness.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c, or will be sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

The Breakfast Apple.

There is an interesting device to make the preparation of the breakfast apple easy. To begin with, there is a little circular board on which the apple is placed. Then there is a circular band of steel, with three or four cross-pieces of metal, sharp on the lower edge, fastened at each end to the steel circle and bisecting each other in the middle. The big circle is placed outside the apple, which is now on the little board, and then is pushed down to the board. The crosspieces cut the apple into segments, each just the right size to pare and eat or to eat unpared if you have a taste for apple skin.

Blue and White Dainty.

A small square cushion, which should be especially nice for a guest room, is covered with blue silk, and over this a fillet lace cover of white is drawn. This dainty little bit of blue and white is then supplied with blue and white headed pins, neatly arranged, all ready for the guest's use.

A team belonging to Mr. Ballance ran away Saturday afternoon from the Grand Trunk station. They kept along the railway track and over the bridge. When almost across the bridge one stumbled and fell. Every one expected to see the team fall into the river but this did not occur. The first to reach the fallen horse was a lady and she kept its head down so that it would not struggle, and when assistance came the team was gotten to safety without further mishap.

Vaudeville at Wonderland.

There is something new and novel on at the Wonderland Theatre this week. The famous McQuinn family opened on Wednesday evening to a crowded house. In addition to the splendid series of moving pictures, including some of the best licensed pictures. Of the performance of the McQuinn family we can speak in the highest terms. Mrs. McQuinn is an accomplished musician, and played the various accompaniments and incidental music in a finished manner. Mr. McQuinn has a pleasing baritone voice, of extensive range and power, which he uses most effectively, being equally satisfactory in dramatic and descriptive ballads as in humorous songs and stories. It was the children of Mr. and Mrs. McQuinn who however got the greatest applause. These little twins, Kathleen and Jeanette, are decidedly clever and their songs and dances made an instantaneous hit, and they were recalled time and again. Especially graceful was the performance of certain steps of the much discussed Tango, which as given by these infant prodigies was the poetry of motion. This talented troupe will be here the balance of the week. Change of program nightly.

Ladies' Musical Club.

The second artist recital of the Musical Club will be held in the Town Hall on Friday evening, March 13th, at 8 o'clock. The ladies have engaged a string trio from the Canadian Academy of Music, of Toronto, for this occasion, consisting of Mr. Edwin Gray, pianist and accompanist, Mr. Milton Blankstein, violinist and Mr. Roy Webster, cellist. Mr. Gray is the artist pupil of Mr. Walther Kirschbaum, well-known in Toronto as the finest pianist in the city. Mr. Gray plays most brilliantly and is well-known as a pianist of splendid ability revealing much of the artistry of his noted teacher. Mr. Blankstein is the finished pupil of Mr. Luigi von Kunitz, so well-known at home and abroad for his musical achievements. Mr. Blankstein played with marked success at his recent recital in Toronto. His tone is fine, his bowing skillful, and he received a number of recalls from a large audience. Mr. Webster, the cellist, a pupil of Mr. George Bruce, is an excellent young player, who is making rapid strides in the mastery of the cello. The program will consist of solos for piano, violin and cello as well as the ensemble trio work. Songs by local talent will complete the program. The club is sure of a very excellent program and extends a very cordial invitation to their friends to come and enjoy a delightful musical evening. Members free, non-members, 25c.

TAMWORTH AGRICULTURAL CLASS.

The Tamworth Agricultural class,
conducted by the Napanee Branch
last week was very successful from every standpoint and the interest taken in it shows that the farmers in the northern country are awake to
the possibilities that offer themselves
in improved methods of husbandry.
The class numbered eighteen regular students, all bright, eager young fellows who were there to get the most out of the course. Mr. Curran remarked on his return that he was very well pleased with the way the work was taken up and looks for greater activity this year as a result of the course. These men will return to their homes and put into practise
the knowledge and information they gleaned, and in so doing will set an example for others to follow. One thing especially that is noticeably lacking in the country surrounding Tamworth namely Ensilage Silos.
The district is admirably suited for stock raising and dairying yet there is only one silo in that part but it is hoped that after the special attention
that was given to corn raising and saying that there will soon be a number erected in different places.

A great deal of interest was exhib-
ed in stock raising showing that the people are convinced that the conditions in these townships are eminently suited for that purpose. The course closed with two days stock and seed
judging which drew from 75 to 100
farmers besides the regular students.

The boys made great progress along the lines of public speaking and as they seemed particularly interested in this it was made a special feature of the course.

On Thursday evening last a public meeting was held in connection with the short course. Mr. Curran gave a lecture on "farm poultry" which was
of special interest to the ladies present.
There were many other speakers
present also but the chief attention
was given to the public speaking contest among the boys. The audience had the opportunity of listening to many budding orators for the first time, and every one congratulated
them upon their achievement. Mr.
Leo Flynn of Enterprise, won the prize of a gold watch chain presented by the Reeve, Mr. J. E. Harrison and Mr. Clarence Neville coming second.

The enthusiasm taken this year is a great encouragement and demonstrates that the people around Tamworth
will respond to any effort made on the part of the local office.
